Galia 565 is an innovative boat designer for leisure use on inland and marine coastal waters. The main focus in this boat is its modern and dynamic look, and a very functional cabin with a raised ceiling in the bow part. The special stern cabrio locker with a sliding rack is an innovative solution allowing the optionally folded cabrio to be completely hidden without occupying the place of people sitting on the stern. The standard includes a double aft couch which serves as a large bed for sunbathing mattresses. For longer cruises, the cabin can house two people. Owing to the staged bow deck height, the cabin is quite large. The ceiling is high made of Perspex provide enough light. The anchor locker hatch is lowered in relation to the deck; this makes walking on the bow deck easier. The fuel tank has been moved aft; this allowed to build a large locker in the cockpit floor, and an additional storage space in the rear part of the cabin. Sides of the cockpit are high, with extra teak handles for improved safety. Numerous options are available to suit different user requirements.
